BIOGRAPHY OF WILLIAM BUEL FRANKLIN

William B. Franklin was born on February 27, 1823 in York, Pennsylvania. He was the oldest son of Walter S. Franklin, a Clerk of the United States House of Representatives, and Sarah Buel Franklin, who had six children, five boys and one girl. He married Anna L. Clarke in 1852.

Franklin was appointed to the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1839 and graduated first in his class in 1943. Following graduation, Franklin was appointed to the United States Army Corps of Topographical Engineers, spending two years with the Stephen W. Kearny Expedition before serving in the Mexican-American War. He then served as a professor at West Point for three years before being appointed to the Light House Board on the north Atlantic Coast, eventually becoming the supervisor of the Board in 1857. In 1859 he was appointed as the engineer supervising construction on the United States Capitol Dome and Post Office Extension, and then as the supervising architect for the Treasury Building just before the beginning of the Civil War.

During the Civil War, Franklin moved through the ranks quickly, eventually earning his highest rank of Major General on July 4, 1862. He was appointed the commander of the Sixth Corps of the Army of the Potomac, which he led in the Peninsula Campaign. Franklin led the Left Grand Division at the Battle of Fredericksburg. Following the Union's defeat at the Battle of Fredericksburg, most of the responsibility for the loss was put on Franklin, and he later testified before the U.S. Congress Joint Committee on the Conduct of the War about the battle. Franklin's image was badly damaged following the defeat at Fredericksburg and the ensuing political upheaval, and he was later transferred to the Department of the Gulf where he commanded the Nineteenth Corp and served in the Red River Campaign. He was wounded in the leg in Louisiana, captured and escaped a day later. The wound limited his service for the remainder of the War.

In 1866, Franklin moved to Hartford, Connecticut and became the Vice President of the Colt Firearms Manufacturing Company, remaining in that position until 1888. He then served as vice president of a Hartford insurance company, and was named a U.S. Commissioner General for the Paris Exposition of 1889. During his years in Connecticut, he was a prominent civic leader, serving on many boards and commissions. Franklin was the President of the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers from 1880 to 1899, and he supervised construction of the Connecticut State Capitol Building. Franklin died on March 8, 1903 in Hartford, Connecticut and is buried in York, Pennsylvania at Prospect Hill Cemetery.

SCOPE AND CONTENTS OF THE COLLECTION

The manuscript component of the collection primarily consists of letters written by or to Franklin. Many of Franklin's diaries, journals, letters and dispatches written during the Civil War are included. Much of the Civil War era and post-Civil War era correspondence, as well as other items, are regarding the Battle of Fredericksburg. The letters include correspondence from or to: George B. McClellan, George Meade, William J. Sewell, Winfield Scott Hancock, Henry W. Halleck, Ambrose E. Burnside, Fitz John Porter, William S. Rosecrans, William F. "Baldy" Smith, the Comte de Paris, William H. Swift, Thomas E.G. Ransom, Walter F. Atlee, and Anna

L. Franklin. Additionally, there are letters between Franklin and his professors at West Point, letters regarding his retirement from the Soldier's Home, letters regarding a possible position as President of Columbia College, letters regarding a possible sale of firearms to the Turkish government, and letters regarding Franklin's personal finances after the Civil War.

The collection also includes newspaper clippings; manuscripts on the Civil War, the Kearny Expedition and the Mexican-American War; items related to the Paris Exposition of 1889; items related to the Rock Island Bridge Commission; items related to Franklin's various civic activities in Hartford; information on the Clarke family; and documents from the construction of Franklin's house in Hartford, Connecticut.

There are a small number of books owned by Franklin, as well as a small number of photographs of Franklin and family members.
