BACKGROUND OF THE REVOLUTIONARY ERA IN YORK COUNTY

York County played an important role in the Revolutionary War. The people of York County selected a committee to protest the British, and provided financial and military support for the War. In 1776, James Smith, a York resident, signed the Declaration of Independence. From September 30, 1777 to June 28, 1778, the Second Continental Congress relocated to York after British troops occupied Philadelphia. During its time in York, the Second Continental Congress adopted the Articles of Confederation, signed the French Alliance, and declared a day of national prayer and thanksgiving. The presence of the Continental Congress in York brought the first printing press to the County. This press was used to print military and legislative news, as well as Continental currency. The Conway Cabal, a group of senior Continental Army officers who sought to have General George Washington replaced as the commander-in-chief of the Army, occurred while the Continental Congress was in York.

SCOPE AND CONTENTS OF THE COLLECTION

The American Revolution Era Documents are a collection of 101 miscellaneous items from the Revolutionary era in York County, primarily consisting of letters, documents and notes. Please note that this collection does not contain documents created by the Second Continental Congress or its delegates. Because these documents relate to the federal government, they are maintained by the Library of Congress.
