

About Flowing Through History

Flowing Through History is an interactive story map created by Chloe Doyle, a rising senior at York College of Pennsylvania who is set to graduate in December 2021. She is a biology major minoring in environmental science, chemistry, and French. This past spring, under the direction of Steve Beck, faculty advisor, she worked as a GIS (geographic information systems) intern for the York County History Center. During her time with the History Center, she created a GIS project, which focused on researching the history of businesses located along the Codorus Creek that runs through York City. The project includes some of the environmental impacts that businesses have had in the past on the creek as well as plans for the restoration of the stream.